

Playfair

The nickel Playfair fire basket reflects the Rococo style of the mid 18th Century. In 1751, a Swedish chemist, A. F. Constedt, invented the nickel, or 'German silver' - an alloy of copper and zinc - from which this fire basket is made. The pierced serpentine apron is decorated with a phoenix, the 'fabulous bird of the classics' that rose from the ashes. Available in polished brass, steel or nickel.

Dimensions

Height 23 $\frac{5}{8}$ in (60cm) width 21in (54.6cm) depth 12in (32cm)

